

Royal Doulton Prestige Figures

Royal Doulton's limited edition Prestige figures exemplify the highest quality, craftsmanship and artistry in figure making. More than just collectables, Prestige figures are genuine works of art that can take months to create and decorate in detail. Each exquisite piece is handmade to order by the Royal Doulton artisans in England. Each limited edition is individually numbered and comes with a certificate of authenticity, and the moulds are broken once an edition is fully produced.

Royal Doulton's Carnival Collection

Brazil's famous street festival is the theme for this third series

Rio de Janeiro's lavish carnival is one of the world's most famous. Scores of spectacular floats surrounded by thousands of dancers, singers and drummers parade through the streets dressed in elaborate costumes. It is an epic event that is televised around the world.

Royal Doulton sculptor Shane Ridge has created all the figures for the Carnival Series. His aim was to create dramatic and contemporary sculptures with movement and interaction.

Window Seasons Prestige Collection

Pushing the boundaries of figurine design

Royal Doulton modeler Adrian Hughes has been inspired by the work of Czech artist Alphonse Mucha (1860-1939) in his latest series of Prestige figures. Each figure has a different graceful pose, reflecting the subtle softness of Mucha's designs. Each represents one of Mucha's trademarks: he often worked in fours, producing large images around a central theme such as flowers, time of the day or the four seasons.

The figures will be launched in pairs: Spring Blossom and Summer Bouquet will be available first, while Autumn Harvest and Winter Festival will follow later this year.

The Prestige Nudes Collection

Lois is the final lady in Royal Doulton's quartet of limited edition nudes inspired by Leslie Harradine's 1920's figures. Sculptor Adrian Hughes has recreated the elegant demeanors and the soft expressions of the early figures. Limited to 350 pieces and handmade in England, each figure has been painted in the traditional Doulton style, mixing colors to create a highly textured decorative effect.

Ludwig van Beethoven
HN5195 Ltd. 350 11.5"H

Beethoven, one of the world's greatest composers, is credited with radically transforming every musical form in which he worked, despite being deaf for most of his life. Sculptor Robert Tabbenor captures the intensity of Beethoven's character by portraying him firmly holding his baton in one hand, while his other hand is clenched to symbolize strength and determination.

Michael Faraday
HN5196 Ltd. 350 11.5"H

Faraday was appointed laboratory assistant to Sir Humphrey Davy at the Royal Institution in 1813. After years of hard work, Michael Faraday became Professor of Chemistry in 1833. Faraday studied the relationships between the forces of light, heat, electricity and magnetism and founded the science of electro-magnetism. His work was key to research in physics and other fields.

The Mogul Empire lasted from 1526 to 1858 AD. The Moguls added many artistic influences to the already vibrant Indian culture, and it is this rich heritage that inspired Royal Doulton modeler Robert Tabbenor's striking new sculpture.

Robert has portrayed the Mogul in traditional costume enjoying one of the favorite pursuits of the time – hunting with a hawk.

Royal Doulton Classic Pastimes

In this detailed series, sculptor Shane Ridge has brought each character to life. The Head Gardener depicts all the traits of a gardener. Featuring accessories such as a watering can and rake, this character study will make a perfect gift for an ardent gardener. The Beekeeper captures a master beekeeper as he examines a frame from the hive. By his feet is a well-stocked basket with jars of honey – the delicious result of hours of this age-old pursuit.
